

EINSTEIN AND AID TRAP 48 ALLEGED BOOZE VIOLATORS

Busy Prohibition Agents Stage
Sunday Round-Up in Several Sections.

Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith, the busy Federal Prohibition agents, dropped their disguises to-day long enough to appear before United States Commissioner Hitchcock against forty-eight persons on whom they had served summonses over the week-end for selling or possessing liquor. They started out yesterday morning on a fishing excursion and joined a lot of other fishermen at the restaurant of Charles Pinout, No. 417 East 70th Street, where they claim they were served with drinks. A search revealed a lot of wines and liquors, they claimed.

Moe told Chief Enforcement Officer John S. Parsons, when the day was over, that Izzy nearly wept in the beer garden kept by Peter Ansen, No. 334 Third Avenue, where dozens of men also were enjoying the cool morning and soft drinks. The beer was so delicious that it required a second glass to make Izzy sure that it was "1 per cent," he explained. Then he served a summons with his tears ready to flow like Wurzburger.

Other places visited by the agents, summonses being left at each, were: John Cavanagh, 282 Alexander Avenue; Patrick J. Cunningham, 402 East 125th Street; Luciana Marchetto, 120 St. Ann's Avenue; Peter Boland, 1,002 26 Avenue; Hugh Murray, 328 East 37th Street; Mike Duffy, 2,011 3d Avenue; John Farrell, 444 East 18th Street; Charles Smith, 1,432 St. Nicholas Avenue; Patrick J. Hurley, 210 West 103th Street; John Hand, 1,480 St. Nicholas Avenue.
